Little Ollie Collins had a narrow escape from drowning Sunday afternoon. He went fishing and fell into the river near the bridge in Boyd lane. A man in the employ of Dr. Porter happened along just in time to save the boy's life. The Virginia City Enterprise, in its issue of the 14th inst. says:

To-day the Republican primaries will be held throughout the State.

You are badly mistaken, sonny, as there is not even a remnant of the Republican party in Nevada east of Washoe county or south of Ormsby; therefore no attention was paid to the party call in those sections.—Silver State.

TWO PICTURES.

Different Ways of Doing Things After the Fall Elections.

Suppose after the November elections it comes to pass that the Silver men have carried nearly all of the Western states. Under these circumstances we can imagine a scene something like this:

Scene. Banking house in Wall street.

Goldbug.—Well gentlemen I see you got my note, but I must call your attention to the fact that you have kept me waiting nearly a quarter of an hour. I am accustomed to do my business with more dispatch, but we won't bother about that. I suppose you are here to continue the old arrangements at the regular terms.

Lets see (reaching for a check book) the syndicate authorizes me to pay a million to each of the National Committees, half down and the balance two years from now after the Presidential nominee has come to our terms.

Chairman Republican National Committee.—But Mr. Goldbug, I fear my party can't enter into any agreement this year. You see our party must have votes and if we don't pass some sure enough silver bills this session we are gone forever.

You see the West is dead on to our game and the East is also getting on to it fast. We can't work these silver convention planks any longer. These d— Nevada, Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska fellows are making such a roar that the whole country is getting its eyes open, and if we don't remonetize silver and that pretty quick there'll be no Republican party.

Chairman Democratic National Committee.—That's just what I came to talk about. My people have decided that we can't hitch with you any more. If we do the whole Democratic party goes to the demnation bow wows. We've helped you work the game as slick as we could, but when whole states get right up and old line politicians quit the parties they have been serving for years, by Jove they mean business. We must stem the tide and the first party that passes a silver bill will be the party in power for the next quarter of a century.

Rep.—That sir, will be my party.

Dem.—No sir, we have a bill already prepared.

Rep. (rising).—No party can outdo mine in its devotion to silver.

Dem.—You demonized it in 1873 and have voted against it over twenty times since then.

Rep.—If you fellows had stood in solid we could have helped you pass it.

Dem.—Don't talk to me you dirty liar!

Rep.—I'll smash your head!

(Grabs a chair.)

Goldbug.—Here you lunatics, don't get excited. (Separates them.) Save this pantomime from the public. I've bought both of you fellows ever since '73. You got your wages right along and by standing pat with both sides we always owned the President no matter which way the election went.

This plan saved us a good deal of money, I never laid awake nights fretting about the count, well, I guess the jig is up and we'll have to get back to honest money and give the people a show, but we've cleaned up several hundred millions on the scheme, and we have no cause to complain. The wonder to me is how so transparent a game could have been worked on millions of intelligent people so long. Well good day gentlemen, some day when things quiet down and a new crop of fools come along we may do some more business.

Both.—It will take a new scheme, this monte game has been thoroughly exploded.

ANOTHER VIEW.

Now supposing the old parties have formed their ranks once more and the Silver party has been turned down.

Scene same place with same people.

Goldbug.—Well boys is everything ready for a fresh deal.

Rep.—My party is all right.

Dem.—And so is mine.

Goldbug.—No disturbing of monetary values this session.

Rep.—No, those silver planks in the State platforms quieted the people down in my section.

Dem.—Had the same effect in mine.

Goldbug.—Slick work wasn't it, Nevada, Kansas, Colorado, Oregon,

California and Nebraska, all in line, Republican.

Both.—You bet.

Goldbug.—Alabama, Texas, Florida even training with the old party.

Both.—That's what.

Goldbug.—It was a close shave, looked like a regular stampede at one time, Nevada was a hard nut to crack for a while, but the people cooled down and when we called on them to remember the sacred memory of the Grand Old Party we hit 'em where they lived, these old musty traditions are great things. (Hits a bell.) Bring in a couple of quarts of Dry Mum. Here is to the good old single standard, and the two grand old parties, may they live long and prosper.

Truth About the Strike.

President Gompers of the Federation of Labor has an able article in the August "North American Review" and "Federationist" concerning the Pullman and A. R. U. strike. It reviews the cause and justifies the strikers. Every man whose capital consists of brains and muscles, and who aims at an honest living, should read these articles. It costs just half as much as a cigar and does not "end in smoke."
